PATTERSON - POWERS

There was a quiet wedding at the home of Mrs. Nellie Powers on High Street, Saturday afternoon, when her daughter, Miss Louise Powers, was united in marriage with Guy S. Patterson of Bethel. Rev. Rensel H. Colby officiated, using the double ring service. Only immediate relatives were present.
The bride was in white silk, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses.
Refreshments were served after the ceremony, and the bridal couple left for a wedding trip. They have a rent in the Weeks house on High Street ready for their occupancy on their return.
Mrs. Patterson is the daughter of Mrs. Nellie Powers and the late Linwood L. Powers. She is a graduate of South Paris High School and of Gray's Business College in Portland, and taught for a time in the latter school. For some time she has had a position with the Paris Trust Co. and she will continue there.
Mr. Patterson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Patterson of Bethel. He is now employed with the Denison-Greenlaw Co. of Norway.

NORWAY HERE FRIDAY

The undefeated league leading Norway nine will play at Gould on Friday. This should be a feature game as the heavy hitting Academy team is determined to give Norway its first setback.
Millett, pitching for Norway, is by far the best pitcher in the league while Gould has proven itself as perhaps the best hitting team. There should be action aplenty when these two combinations meet.
The game will start at 3:30 o'clock and it is hoped that a large crowd will be present.
Rumford Here Wed., May 23
The following Wednesday Rumford will play at Gould. Stephens High always presents a strong aggregation and this year will be no exception. This will be the last home game for the locals.

AVIATOR TO WED TURNER GIRL

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Fenn of Turner announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Marie, to Percy Mendel Tibert, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Tibert of Bridgewater, Nova Scotia. Mr. Tibert is a pilot for the J. & H. Aircraft Corp. of Hartford, Conn. Miss French is a graduate of Leavitt Institute in the class of 1928. The marriage will take place in the near future.
"Carl Hansman, 82 won the second prize in the annual Faraday lecture contest held at the Pasadena Junior College early in April. These lectures are held annually for the purpose of increasing interest in science. The lecture was about the "Effects of an electron" and the notes were taken as the lecture was given, and were not changed or corrected afterward. The prize consisted of a chemical set for experiments. Young Hansman is the nephew of Mrs. Allen H. C. Finck. The clipping was taken from the school paper of the school in Pasadena, Calif., which he attends. The family spent the summer in Bethel.
Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wheeler, Mrs. F. M. Wood and Miss Myra Wheeler were in Lewiston, Saturday.

"WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES?"

The comedy, "What Happened to Jones," presented by the Lions Club of Bethel last Thursday and Friday nights, was an unqualified success from every point of view.
The play was mirth provoking to say the least, and all the parts were taken most creditably in fact some of them with a professional air that made us forget that we were viewing amateurs.
Splendid audiences greeted the players both nights, and the dance that followed the play was well patronized.
Much credit is due Mrs. Emma Young who coached the play, and also Miss Cottrell who ably assisted her.
Something over $150.00 was realized from the play, which will be devoted to the building of a skating rink for the children next winter.
It is expected that the play will be repeated in some nearby town very soon.

The Lions Club that sponsored the play wish to thank all who contributed to the success of the performance. Especially would we thank Richard Young, the gifted alto soprano, Arthur Doolley, Miss Cottrell and Clarence Huff, all of whom contributed greatly to the audience's enjoyment.

GOULD TEAMS MEXICO 10-5

Gould had little difficulty in defeating Mexico 10-5. The only real Mexico threat came in the second inning when Botkoe hit a double with three men on base. The three men on bases were there because of errors by Alger and Bartlett and one being hit by a pitched ball. Four runs were scored in this inning while the fifth one crossed the plate in the third after three more Gould errors had been committed. For the last six innings the locals played errorless ball and were never threatened again.
The winners chalked up 12 safe hits. Weir, Jim Alger and Al Chesbro with a double and single apiece led the attack. Saunders and J. Chesbro connected for two singles apiece. These together with frequent Mexico errors, were enough to score the final 10 runs.
"Al" Chesbro pitched nice ball for the winners, striking out 11 men and allowing only five scattered hits.
The feature of the game was a running catch made by Johnson which he managed to grab just at his elbow before a fast sprint.

IN MEMORIAM

On the morning of the ninth of May occurred the death of Edwin Harold Keniston, the little nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Keniston of Albany.
An accident at the school which he attended caused blood poisoning in one side of his face and throat. The best of care and attention could not save him from a very painful illness. Through it all he showed great patience and courage that he won the love and admiration of all who saw him. Many friends and relatives as well as his immediate family mourn for the loss of the brave little lad.
The Rev. Mr. Hall conducted the services at the home. The lovely casket on which he rested was covered with floral tributes, and the room was banked with flowers. Among them were nine large beautiful lilies from his teacher and classmates.
His father and mother, two older brothers and one baby sister have the sincere grief of all. He sleeps now quietly and peacefully in the Hillside Cemetery at Stoneham.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Albert Heath entertained 17 children at her home May 16, in honor of her twice birthday. Henry and Henrietta were six years old. Many pretty and useful gifts were received.
Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and the afternoon was spent in playing suitable games, and a happy time enjoyed by all.
Mrs. Uta Parsons is working at Bethel Inn.

Gould Academy Notes

The Girl Reserves will hold a ceremonial service on the campus in front of the Students Home on Sunday evening at 7:00. The public is cordially invited to share in this service. If the weather is unfavorable for an out of doors service, the program will be given in the gymnasium.
The last two supervised hikes were taken during the last week. Monday afternoon the longest one was taken and 28 girls hiked beyond Songo Pond. Returning to the pond the girls enjoyed a picnic supper. The enthusiasm shown by the girls for hiking is very gratifying.

Friends of Gould will be interested to know that this spring's Commencement Number of The Academy Herald will be by far the best issue Gould has ever published. It will contain approximately 80 pages, of which over 15 will be devoted to pictures of school life at Gould. There will be five pages of individual cuts of the Senior class. The 1929 Oxford County Championship basketball team will have three pages of individual cuts with write-ups. There will be full page cuts of the Academy, the debating, baseball, track, winter sports, and girls basketball teams. The editorial board, Junior play cast, Sophomore championship team and the boys' championship basketball team will occupy half pages. A beautiful view of the Gould campus will extend across the upper half of the two middle pages. In addition to these there will be a small cut of the "Students' Home" as well as the two pages of snap shots. The cover will be especially attractive with its display of "Blue and Gold" on a background of high grade material; it will add a touch of distinction and beauty to the Commencement Number.

All departments of the school will be especially well represented in this issue. Advertisers, not only in Bethel but in various parts of New England, have been especially willing and eager to cooperate toward making the Commencement number one of the best high school editions in the state.
The "Academy Herald" will be off the press about June 1st. In anticipation of the unusually large demand each issue is sure to create, a larger number of copies than usual has been ordered. Many former Gould students will want to possess a copy of this number, if for no other reason than for the splendid pictures of Gould which it contains.

The Gould track team will enter a dual meet with Rumford High at Rumford, on Saturday, May 27. The events will start at 1:30 o'clock, standard time. Coach Fossell has had the team working hard for the past five weeks, and has uncovered some especially fine material. "Carl" Holmes with his recent broad jump mark of 20 ft. 3 in., will undoubtedly smash the county record. His recent mark is much better than those turned in by the largest high schools in the state. "Al" Chesbro has turned in marks in both the pole vault and the high jump that compare favorably with the records set by college freshmen in this state. Wilton Bartlett surprised local fans by copping the mile in easy fashion during the class meet. He shows good form and remarkable endurance, and will bear watching in both the county and State meets. In the 440 Douglass and Johnson will make the best of them step. Gould shows special strength in the 100 and 200 yard dashes, T. E. Hamlin and Holmes all showing up well in the class meet. Hamlin showed remarkable improvement since last year and may better the record set by his brother, Phil, who copped first at Bates for two consecutive years. George Parsons is likely to figure in the distance runs, and may better his last year's performance, at which time he won third place. Barham is Gould's best shot in the weights events, and may square out a point or two. Others likely to boost Gould's point total are: Robert Bean and Jay Willard, in the high jumps; Franklin Chapman in the mile and Hancock in the half.

The county meet at Fryeburg has been postponed until June 1st.
The Rev. Mr. Hall conducted the services at the home. The lovely casket on which he rested was covered with floral tributes, and the room was banked with flowers. Among them were nine large beautiful lilies from his teacher and classmates.
His father and mother, two older brothers and one baby sister have the sincere grief of all. He sleeps now quietly and peacefully in the Hillside Cemetery at Stoneham.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois

LIKES AND DISLIKES

It is humanly impossible to like everybody or at least it is impossible to like all people with the same degree of intensity. Even the most saintly men have found it impossible to develop affection for all the people they meet.

But I can come into my office with an unopened letter in my hand. Now ordinarily Barton is the soul of good humor and courtesy and kindly feeling toward his acquaintances. Nobody greets the newcomer in a more friendly and neighborly fashion. Dogs are fond of Barton, so I need not say more.

"Here's a letter from Andrews," he announced. "I haven't the least idea what it is about, but I know before I open it that it will make me mad."

Now you see Barton didn't like Andrews. Maybe he had a good reason for his antipathy, maybe not. That did not influence the situation.

For many of our personal dislikes there is no definite or adequate reason. I do have my aversions, however, as I should not. Holmes, as I now recall, names five sorts of people whom he cannot abide, and though I have forgotten his exact classification, I recall that I agreed with him.

I dislike the person who fawns upon me, who constantly flatters and whose flattery is so exaggerated and insincere as to disgust those who listen to it.

I dislike the man who high-hats and bullies his inferiors in social and business positions.

I dislike the man who is afraid to stand on his own feet, to express an opinion contrary to that expressed by his superior officer.

Possibly if I knew some of these people better I should dislike them less. I can't tell.

Modern Coed Has Own Standard of Freedom

I have come in contact with a number of modern coeds at various institutions, and many of them have been able, not to say willing or eager, to discuss excessively delicate subjects with the utmost freedom, as long as the discussion remains on a scientific or dispassionate basis. If there is anything that many modern coeds will not talk about I don't know what it is.

I am quite unable to state, however, that they are infinitely more sophisticated than their mothers, or than the preceding generation of coeds; because I have no way of knowing how much their mothers knew. I have a strong suspicion, however, that their mothers knew a great deal more than they admit knowing; and it seems quite obvious that a great many dangers who stand glibly against the conversation and the crimes that are laid at the door of the younger generation are ready to listen to the conversations and to repeat them at every opportunity.

I might even go so far as to hint that if opportunities do not present themselves, they make their own opportunities. It takes a high-grade of stultification to carry the inner meaning out of this state of affairs.—Kenneth L. Roberts, in the Saturday Evening Post.

Clock Made for Pope Marvel of Ingenuity

The most beautiful clock in England is said to be found in the British museum. It is believed to have been made by Pope Sixtus V. that pontiff, brought up (as some tell) a watchmaker, who amassed when he reached the holy see such treasures as eclipsed the wealth of Europe; to whom much of the magnificence of Rome is owed.

Three stories high it stands, telling on its dial the fast days, the signs of the Zodiac, the motions of the sun and moon in their course. Besides the minute dial a cherub raises a sickle as the hour strikes, while his neighbor turns an hour-glass over.

But you will need all your eyes for the topmost story, divided into four balanced tiers. On the lowest the gods of the days of the week pass slowly round. Above, the Virgin and Child are seated, before whom angels make oblation as they pass by. Next, the four ages of man strike the quarters on a bell. On the topmost balcony Death comes forward at the hour and strikes a bell, the figure of Our Lord retreating meanwhile.

Crowning it all a beautifully molded cock perches on the dome; and when the chimera have rung he flaps his wings and crows!

Scene of Bloodshed

The famous Sialpyn rock of Ceylon has a story of blood behind it, says an article in the Times of India. Standing 11 miles from Dambulla on the Trinco road, it rises sheer to a height of 450 feet above the surrounding plain and was the stronghold of one Kassapa who seized the throne after killing his father and attempting the life of his brother.

Kassapa lived there for 18 years and during that time he built churches, courtyards and palaces on the rock. Eventually he was defeated and killed in battle by his brother.

War Tank's "Innards"

Generally speaking, the major part of the inside of a war tank is taken up by the engine or motor. There is enough room at the sides of the motor to let the mechanic get around for adjustment. In front there is space for the driver. In front of the driver is either a machine gun or a light six-pounder gun which shoots through a port in the armor. The machine gun is usually mounted in a sort of tower which can be moved so as to give an all-around fire. There are sometimes additional guns with ports on either side of the tank.

College Men Win Honors

The Nation's Business says that in spite of the fact that less than 1 per cent of American men are college graduates, this 1 per cent has furnished 65 per cent of our Presidents, 55 per cent of our members of congress, 47 per cent of the speakers of the house, 64 per cent of the Vice Presidents, 62 per cent of the secretaries of state, 50 per cent of the secretaries of the treasury, 67 per cent of the attorneys general, and 60 per cent of the justices of the Supreme court.

Sand Used as Defense

The expression "throwing sand in their eyes" is said to have had its origin in southern Siberia, where the tribes depend for safety largely on the stealthiness of their horses. The land is very sandy and the method of repulsing an opponent was by means of a handful of sand tossed at him, with the result, if the aim was good, of at least temporary blindness and blindness.

Juven Kept Tah

In a trial at Chelmsford, one of the juvenes kept track of the evidence with toothpicks. When the defense asked a point he would put a toothpick in one pocket and when the state asked a point he would put a toothpick in another pocket. There were so many toothpicks in the second pocket that the judge tried the conviction at once.

Here's where a car leads a tough life

NO General Motors car is turned out of the factory until a fleet of exact duplicates of that model has been found good by the engineers at General Motors' Proving Ground.

Such an advance model must prove itself from stem to stern. The tests involve speed, power, endurance, braking, riding comfort, handling ease; fuel, oil, and tire economy; body strength—every phase of car construction and performance. It's a tough life.

Such testing would be beyond the means or resources of an individual. 1268 acres of land at Milford, Michigan, are devoted to this outdoor laboratory where hills are steep and roads are vicious. Men who are among the world's best automotive engineers conduct the tests.

This tested performance is as much a part of a General Motors car as the chassis. You can't see it. You don't pay extra for it. But you know it as you give the car long use on the road.

THE TOWN DOCTOR

(The Doctor of Towns)
SAYS

SOME TOWNS, LIKE TRUCKS, GET STUCK IN THE MUD

There is something about the building of a highway that is, to me, as a magnet to steel. When driving through the country, a "Road Under Construction" sign is a near command to drive around the barrier, and learn if the notice is telling the truth.

There is something majestic and awe-inspiring about the laying of a ribbon of concrete across a plain, through the valleys, or over the hills. Perhaps it is not the actual construction as much as the value of what the completed work will be to the communities it will serve, wondering if these it will benefit will take full advantage of the opportunity.

The paving of a country is an epoch in the life of the area through which it passes, for it marks the passing of the old into the new, and to me, a changing from the old order of things is always of interest.

Last fall, while making what has been spoken of as a "fine journey," I obtained permission to drive a twelve-mile strip of newly laid concrete through the Paris Hills country in Illinois. It was a beautiful roadway in a beautiful country, and I could but marvel at the thoroughness the perfect contour of this "sidewalk for motor cars" to hillside, vale and woodland—it was perfect.

Some miles from the convergence of this roadway with the main arterial highway a large force of workmen with a score of dump trucks were making a fill. Trucks loaded with loose earth came from both directions, system-

A Great War Hero

There is a story of gallantry and heroism—of Count Felix von Luckner, who disrupted Allied shipping on two oceans, gambling with his own life many times, but without taking that of anyone. Lowell Thomas, who writes his story, says he is the most romantic and mysterious figure produced by the Central Powers, in the World War; one fit to stand alongside of that other great figure of Thomas' recounting, Lawrence of Arabia. Do not miss the story, "COUNT LUCKNER, THE SEA DEVIL."

COMMUNICATION

Editor Oxford County Citizen:

After reading the "Town Doctor" in the May 8th issue of the Citizen I cannot help but wonder why Bethel, with all its beauty and wonderful advantages as a summer resort isn't even mentioned in the Boston & Maine Ry. latest edition of "New England Resorts." Some one is in error in allowing the beauties of the town to be unknown to the thousands that might come to Bethel if they knew of it. Then take any Boston Sunday paper and you usually find a page of summer resorts, advertisements telling the world of the beauties of Maine but in Bethel among them! Never, with the exception of The Bethel Inn advertisement in the Globe. To make money you have got to spend some and I know advertising pays—that's sure.

Then why cannot someone with authority, have Grand Trunk points published in the Boston & Maine time table. You will find every principal point on every railroad in Maine except the stations west of Mechanic Falls on the G. T. R. Then of course Gorham and Berlin are stations of the B. & M. but one would never know that they could be reached any other way except via B. & M. which is many miles further and more expensive than via Portland.

It makes me heart sore to see dear old Bethel omitted and I think if the proper person should take it up with the B. & M. officials they would be glad to restore it as it was some 10 years ago. The town and the railroad will gain if it were known. The town may, for every summer guest leaves some money in the town. I think that a good job for the Lions Club. What say, A Former Bethel Boy.

Actually they swung to the right, half circled to the center of the pavement, then backed; a whistle blew, the truck stopped, the dump body tipped and the end gate opened; another whistle, and the truck moved out and on up the road. For an hour I watched them as like giant ants they came and went, filling the hole that was bad for the highway.

Then something happened. A man drove a truck, very heavily loaded, backed up to the hole, and the truck tipped and down the embankment, settling deep on the wet, loose, spongy loam. It was stuck—no doubt about it!

A loud whistle blew, trucks cut around stopped, swung around, and returned to the fill; and the truck drove up in a line. Chains rattled as each helped to the other, a workman attached a chain, thrust, and a whistle blew. At the first whistle, all trucks moved forward taking up the slack; at the second, gears meshed into low at the third, every clutch of every truck was engaged, and without jump or jerk, all, as one, moved forward, steadily, surely, until the stuck truck was back on solid pavement. There was no fuss, no fuss, excitement of all sorts. All of the trucks pulled, none was standing at the side of the road, idling, watching or shouting advice; all pulled in the same direction at the same time.

The moral is plain. If your town is "stuck," if it isn't moving forward, gather round, everybody, back on, get a new "pitch," then pull TOGETHER in the same direction.

Regiment's Wooden Sword

Whether the tenth infantry of the United States army appears on parade either at its home station, Fort Stevens in Washington, or by one of its regiments, it always carries a wooden sword.

This sword was carved from a tree which still stands at Berlin, where the headquarters of the present regiment took part in the decisive struggle. The sergeant who has served longest in the regiment is awarded the honor of carrying the sword.

Blind Worry

Worry is one of the greatest enemies we can have through life. It saps more of our strength than any other thing. And it is especially true when it sits on the back of the man who faces his problems with courage.

ARTHUR EASTMAN

Arthur Eastman passed away Saturday, May 18, at a hospital in Rumford after a week's illness with pneumonia.

Mr. Eastman was born at Mexico, May 25, 1870, where he has always made his home. He attended the schools in Mexico and was graduated from Mexico High school. He was a prosperous farmer and will be greatly missed by his family and all those who knew him. He was a member of the Baptist church. He leaves besides his wife, daughter and three sons, two sisters, Mrs. Sewall Weeks of Rumford and Mrs. John Gill of Bethel. He also leaves several nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held at his home in Mexico, Monday, May 20, at 10 o'clock. The flowers were many and beautiful. Burial was in Hillside cemetery in Frye.

Sorrow o'er thee lowly-lovers,
Yet I bid thee cease to weep.
God's hand stills pain's troubled waters.

And your loved one fell asleep.
Thou'lt not hear the summons,
Yet I bade him "enter rest,"
And you know he's free from sickness,
Simply trust for God knows best.

When he wakes from dreamless slumber
Just within the "Gates Ajar,"
He'll be with the countless number
Where the "many mansions" are.
Where for all his deeds of kindness
His reward he'll surely reap.
Where we hope to one day meet him
When we too shall fall asleep.

And God's angel "Rest" shall softly
Smooth all lines of care away;
While we slumber "till the Saviour
Bids us wake to endless day;
And through all the years before thee
His dear memory you will keep.
Knowing, free from pain's dark torture
Calmly, he has gone to sleep.

GOULD 13 — SOUTH PARIS 14

Gould Academy lost to South Paris High, 14-13, in a wily battle. Both teams committed errors frequently, which coupled with the heavy hitting brought in run after run.

In the seventh inning "Al" Chesbro hit a home run with two on which sent the locals into a 12 to 11 lead. The lead was short lived, however, for in the following half inning Jay Willard, after taking an easy ground ball, threw wide to Bartlett who dropped it and allowed two runs to cross the plate. This play should have been an easy third out.

For Gould "Al" Chesbro started at the bat with a homer, a double and two singles. Burnham connected for five singles in six times up, while Saunders hit a homer and a double in six times up.

For South Paris, Card with four singles was the only man that could gather more than one hit.

Salesmen usually drive their cars many times farther in a year than the average motorist. Salesmen travel all kinds of roads in all sorts of weather. They have found by experience that Goodyear tires wear longest, cause least delay and are safest on slippery roads.

For similar reasons, millions more people ride on Goodyear tires. Why don't you?—they cost no more.

COUNT LUCKNER, THE SEA DEVIL

Copyright by Double Day, Doris & Co. by Lowell Thomas

British are smart people, by and they know how to gather a lot of special information. They attach special importance to letters. The sailor eagerly forwards the letter he will receive at the next port. He never keeps a letter away from him, but keeps a stack of them in his chest. Sometimes you will see a sailor reading a letter, that his mother wrote him eight years before. So we got up a whole set of letters from "Norwegian" sailors, each set different from the other.

One of the mechanics' helpers, Schmidt by name, I had taken for a principal role in our strategy. He was slender, beardless, and of delicate appearance, and could pass well enough in women's clothes. Norwegian skippers often take their wives with them on their voyages. The captain's wife aboyed the false Maleta would seem, natural and tend to disarm suspicion, and, besides, British naval officers are always courteous and considerate toward women. In the presence of the captain's wife, a prize officer who might board us would be more obliging toward us all. We had a blonde wig for Schmidt and an outfit of women's clothes. We took great pains in schooling him to play the part of the captain's wife correctly. One difficulty was his big feet. There was, unfortunately, no way to make them smaller, so we arranged that the captain's wife should be slightly ill and remain seated during any possible search and have a rug thrown over her feet to keep them warm. The other difficulty was Schmidt's voice. It was too deep, and he knew no Norwegian. Well, the captain's wife can't talk because she has an awful toothache. A word of cotton stuffed into Schmidt's cheek, and there was the swelling. He did know enough English to say "all right." We trained him to say a high-pitched "all right" something like a woman with a toothache. Except for that phrase, he was to keep his mouth shut. We had a large photograph made of Schmidt in his costume, signed "thy loving Josephine," and hung it in my cabin. Now the Britishers could compare the photograph of the captain's wife with the lady in person. So from now on poor Schmidt's name was "Josefene" as the Norwegians pronounce it.

We were ready to sail when, by Joe's

I had been a common ordinary sailor, and this had aroused a lot of antagonism in naval circles. There had been jealousy about my getting an independent command—highest of all naval honors. So attempts were being made to have my assignment annulled.

Even to appear in the Imperial presence was a trying ordeal for most officers. Many took refuge in rigid "attention." Well, I had never quite got used to high-class manners at sea, and the ramrod "attention" left me more embarrassed than otherwise. Even in the emperor's presence, I kept the same brusque manner of an old-time seaman that was natural to me.

The Kaiser spoke bluntly.

"Well, Luckner, at the admiralty they now tell me it is madness to attempt the blockade with a sailing ship. What do you think?"

"Well, your majesty, if our admiralty says it's impossible and ridiculous, then I'm sure it can be done, I replied. "For the British admiralty will think it impossible also. They won't be on the lookout for anything so absurd as a raider disguised as a harmless old sailing ship."

The emperor looked at me with a frown, and then his face relaxed into a smile.

"You are right, Luckner. Go ahead! And may the hand of the Almighty be at your helm!"

about the towns listed in the stolen log book, and the rest we invented. Each man had to learn the names of the main streets of his town, the principal hotels, taverns, and drug stores, as well as the names of the mayor and other officials. Much of this sort of material had already been woven into the letters we had prepared for the sailors. Each man had to familiarize himself with the set of photographs that had been allotted to him, and the names of them all, the contents of his letters, and fix in his mind a whole new past life, according to the life of a sailor of the real Maleta whose role he was to play.

Our giant Norwegian submarine, the Deutchland was on her way from from her famous transatlantic cruise to America. In an attempt to cut her off, the British had set a double watch. So the Seeadler would have to slip past twice as many cruisers and destroyers as otherwise. I still hoped that, if only detained a day or so, we might yet be able to slip across the North Sea ahead of the Maleta. But we lay there for three and a half weeks, and the sad news came that the real Maleta had sailed and passed through the blockade. If we now attempted to use her name and a search party boarded us, the jig would be up.

So we hurriedly examined Lloyd's Register in the hope of finding another Norwegian ship that might correspond to us. We picked out one called the Carmoe. We had no idea where she was, but hoped she might be in some distant port—unbeknown to the wary British. It was a long chance, but we could think of nothing better. Now we had to change our ship from the Maleta to the Carmoe. Paint out one name and substituting another was easy enough, but changing all our ship's papers was far more difficult. But with much use of chemical eraser we finally accomplished it, and we had papers that would pass if the visibility was not too bright during the search. Then, when we were all set again, we picked up a copy of a Norwegian commercial paper and found that the real Carmoe had just been seized by the British and taken to Kirkwall for examination.

Now, if you haven't any luck, you must go and get some! All you have to do is know how to do that, and you will be a great success at sea, or anywhere!

So away with Lloyd's Register! Let's take life's register and name our ship again after the girl of my heart. Surely she will bring us luck. So, out with the paint and on with another new name—the name of my sweetheart, Irma.

In that name was concentrated most of the beauty that I had found in life. It symbolized strange moments of beauty that had crossed my path during the most trying days I had so far known. It seemed to be a lovely silken thread that had run through the years since that first voyage, when as a miserable cabin boy I sailed to Australia on that Russian tramp.

Of course, there was no such name as Irma listed with Lloyd's, and all any British officer would have to do would be to consult his register and the jig would be up. But somehow I had a premonition that the name Irma would bring us through.

When we applied eraser and ink to our shipping papers and wrote in the name of Irma—dramatic! Two erasures were too much. The ink blotted, it we should be stupid enough to take the British for fools, then we ourselves would be the real fools. Where was our luck now? Fate seemed to be against us, but I had no intention of giving up. Calling the carpenter, I said:

"Come on, Chips, I am going to make you admiral of the day. Get the ax and smash all the bull's-eyes, windows, portholes, and everything."

Poor Chips! He thought I had gone off my head, but he obeyed. The smashing began.

"Ho'n, I called, 'half a dozen men with buckets of sea water! Throw it around, drench everything!'"

And now the water flew in the cabin, in the drawers of chests, in the officers' bunks, all over my Norwegian library, water everywhere. I took my shipping papers and put each page between sheets of wet blotting paper so that not only the name of Irma and the other entries we had changed were blotted, but every line. I even soaked the log book in a bucket of water.

Then I called the carpenter again.

"Now repair everything you have smashed, Chips. Nail everything."

He hammered planks over the smashed portholes and hull's-eyes, and put the smashed chairs together as well as he could.

Now, if the Britisher came aboard he would say:

"By Joe, captain, you must have had a hard blow to get knocked about like this."

And I would growl, "Yes, by Joe, everything is drenched, even my papers."

Two days later a southwest wind sprang up. The moment was at hand to go sailing in a sailing ship and that sailing ship with the name of Irma painted on her bows—oh, it seemed more like a dream than like setting out on a real adventure. It seemed as though all the events of my life had been designed to converge to this one glorious point. Our one hundred and seventy-foot masts creaked. Our nine hundred and seventy-ton hull

CHAPTER III

Running the British Blockade

Sails belled and motor humming, we parted the waves and left a path of foam in our wake. On deck we devoted all our spare time to more dress rehearsals.

My boss took a particular relish in putting me through the "third degree," as you call it. One of them played the part of a British search officer.

"Now, Captain, what is the name of your ship?" he bellowed.

"She is the Irma, and as good a full-rigged ship as ever crossed the North Sea."

"Have you any brothers and sisters, Captain?"

"Oh, yes, a lot of them. There are Olga, Ingeborg, and Oscar who live in Hamfjeldalen. Dagmar and Christian are seamen like myself. Lars runs a saw-mill cannery in British Columbia, Gustaf and Tor are lumbermen somewhere in America. And then we have another brother, Eric, whom we've lost track of."

While trying to make the narrow channel of Nordaune we hit a sand bank. The ship creaked and the masts trembled, but somehow we pushed across—further proof that the Scots of Glasgow still know how to turn out a sturdy clipper ship.

At ten o'clock we passed the Horns reef and continued along the Danish coast. At eight bells we hoped to reach the Skagerrak, and then turn her west to give the enemy the impression that we had come from a Scandinavian port. Shortly before daybreak the wind shifted abruptly from southwest to due north. Against such a stiff breeze, we could make little headway. On our right were the low rocky fjords and reefs along the coast of Rinnklopping and Flakstad. To the left were British mine fields. We didn't dare run into a Danish harbor for fear of being interned. So we must either turn back or take a chance on slipping through the mine fields. It is always possible to sail through a mine field—provided you sail under a lucky star with a guardian angel at the helm.

"Hard aport! We'll risk it, boys!" With a full spread of sail, we turned straight west.

Now, a latching ship heels over. The more sail you carry the more she lays over, and the less water she draws. That was our chance. The mines were nearly always planted several feet under water, just out of sight. Perhaps we could slide right over them. Lifeboats were lowered, and every man adjusted his lifebelt. Before the mast, the sailors, aft, the captain, but we all kept to the foreship. We were lower aft than fore, and if a mine went off it probably would be aft. But our luck held and we got through in safety.

Our course lay around the northern end of Scotland, along the usual shipping route from Norway to the Atlantic. To be sure, we could have hugged the Norwegian coast, but the blockade was even tighter there. That was the natural course for one of our sailing armored cruisers to take, so if she were headed off by Beatty, she could turn on by into a neutral Norwegian port and accept internment rather than capture. We didn't even keep to the middle of the North Sea, but with the fleet that our one path of safety lay right under John Bull's nose, we followed the coast of England and Scotland.

There were three lines of the blockade. The first lay across the North Sea from the Scottish to the Danish coast. We must run this one first.

The wind grew stronger. The barometer fell. Anyone on the North Sea on the twenty-third of December, 1910, will remember the hurricane that came. It was one of the worst storms of years. The wind was cyclonic in force, and lashed the shallow North Sea into a cauldron. Running before it we carried every foot of sail we dared, every stick except the royal and gallantails and smaller staysails. We could take chances.

We sped right through the first line of the blockade without sighting a ship and as though the whole North Sea were ours. Instead of going up, the barometer continued to fall. Louder roared the storm, and more and more mountains became the waves. We passed the second line of the blockade. Still not a ship in sight.

Midnight grew near, and still that wild heaven-sent hurricane kept up. We ran before it like a frightened bird, fearing every minute that our sails and masts would go overboard. We lay on our yards and scanned the horizon with our glasses. Half past eleven! We were in the midst of the blockade line. Where were the cruisers and destroyers? All we could hear was the whistling of the wind and the rushing of the water beneath our bows. All we could see, the blackness of the night. Twelve o'clock and still no sign of the enemy. Even our binoculars and compass lights were out, for any ray of light might betray us. By one o'clock we knew we had passed the last line.

The British, warned by the falling barometer, had taken their guard ships to shelter in the lee of the islands. There was nothing else for them to do in such a storm. Even if they saw a ship, it would be hopeless to try to board her. And if Beatty's fleet had kept to sea, there would have been grave danger of their running one another down. We couldn't help recalling the old saying that it is indeed an ill wind that blows no one any good.

Gratifying State of Bird Life in Florida

While there is no doubt that great damage was done to the bird life of the Everglades by hurricanes in Florida, it is encouraging to know, from a report made to the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, that there are still numbers of beautiful plumage birds in this region. An official recently made a trip through the Lake Okechobee region and had an opportunity to witness a rare and beautiful sight, one that a bird lover might expect to see but once in a lifetime. At a point about ten miles east and north of Belle Glade, Palm Beach county, and as far as Palmetto, in all a distance of about 25 miles, there were thousands of American egrets and snowy egrets stretching away as far as the eye could see. It was impossible to estimate the number of these beautiful birds. Within 100 yards of Belle Glade not less than 100 snowy egrets fed undisturbed. While there seemed no reason for these birds gathering in such vast numbers in this territory the night was positive proof that the plumage birds of Florida have benefited by the protection afforded them under the migratory bird treaty act.

"THE DOVER ROAD" AT LAKEWOOD NEXT WEEK

A. A. Milne, ranking British dramatist, will supply The Lakewood Players with one of his best known plays for the second bill of the season at the famous theatrical resort. The selection is "The Dover Road," which ran for 300 performances at the Bijou Theatre, New York, with Mr. Charles Cherry as the star, and because of its fine qualities as an entertainment is certain to meet with the keen approval of the Lakewood following.

Mr. Milne has based the plot of "The Dover Road" partly on fact, for the road from London to Dover is internationally famous as the highway over which eloping couples pass on their way to France. The fascinating hero of this whimsical and delightful comedy drama lives all alone with his servants in a mansion at Kent. The driveway to his home leads off from the road to Dover, and by dubious methods he manages to intercept the flushed couples who are seeking happiness in elopement.

In the cast of "The Dover Road" will be seen Wallis Clark, in the Charles Cherry role, Houston Richards, Frances Goodrich, Kathryn March, Robert Hudson, Thurston Hall, Samuel T. Godfrey, Donald J. McGinnis, Eileen Byron, Virginia Godfrey and others.

Performances of the play will be given each evening at eight o'clock standard time through the week beginning next Monday. For the balance of this week The Lakewood Players are presenting "Pomeroy's Past" which is widely popular with the audiences.
